Lifestyle and wellness à la Tschuggen

With the Tschuggen Bergoase designed by the Swiss star architect Mario Botta which opened December 2006, the Tschuggen Grand Hotel has not only created an unmistakable visual landmark for both the hotel and the destination, but also redefined the much-used term “Wellness”. With the greatest possible well-being of its guests in mind, visions have been turned into reality in this unique building – especially in terms of architecture and interior design, but also with the futuristic Tschuggen Express, the in-house mountain railway. And in gastronomic terms, too, the Tschuggen Grand Hotel situated in Arosa at an altitude of 1800 metres, is setting new standards.

The nine opulent, yet filigree glass sails of the Tschuggen Bergoase, a structure laid out in the form of a terrace and inset into the rock, direct daylight into the centre of the well-being oasis. At night they create an impressive spectacle of lights amongst the trees. With four levels and an area of 5000 square metres, the guest can experience a new dimension of warmth, rock, light and water. The natural materials are conducive to peaceful relaxation. A harmonious, low-key design runs throughout from the sauna landscapes to the various pools and the exclusive spa suites. A large fitness area with the very latest machines completes the facilities of the Tschuggen Bergoase.

AROSA

The Tschuggen Grand Hotel's 128 totally renovated rooms and suites bear the hallmark of the renowned Swiss interior designer Carlo Rampazzi. They convey a combination of extravagance and harmonious idyll. Patchwork bed heads in youthful and humorous or discreet designs have developed into a trademark of the hotel. The pillows and bedspreads are perfectly coordinated with the rest of the design. Fine Venetian stucco on walls and ceilings, carefully selected characteristic furniture, imaginative accessories and large, luxurious bathrooms create a modern experience of well-being with an incomparable view of the Arosa mountain scenery.

Gastronomic diversity is provided by the five in-house restaurants which have committed themselves to down-to-earth cuisine – whether for a gala dinner or a casual evening. Great importance is attached to fresh produce, herbs and mouth-watering flavours, prepared in unusual and individual styles and with a new unpretentiousness. The gourmet restaurant La Vetta is awarded with one Michelin Star since 2012.

In response to the enormous success, the Tschuggen Grand Hotel opens for ten months from June until April since 2008. The mild and agreeable mountain summer and picturesque autumn in the Alps make it a perfect location for hiking, mountain-biking, Nordic walking or golf on one of the highest and most challenging 18-hole golf-courses in Europe at an altitude of 2000 metres.
